

Hello, today is the 29th of March and all I wanted to do was wish you a happy Easter and make sure that you have the latest allocations and the latest numbers for the month of April. No changes from last week. As you can see, these are the allocations. The broker statements are updated. All you have to do is click that order entry.

Of course, there is none. And if there's anything at all that we wish to do over the course of next week, we will naturally send you an email. I've updated the monthly performance and that is all I have for you this week and it just remains for me to wish you a very happy Easter with your families and we will speak to you next weekend.
